

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A house code assigning device includes a communication unit for sending a command for requesting transmission of a house code to electronic equipment included in a system and for 5 receiving a house code from the electronic equipment, a verification unit for verifying whether or not a house code received by the communication unit is correct and for outputting a verification result showing whether or not the house code received by the communication unit is correct, and a display
10 control unit for controlling a light emitting unit according to the verification result from the verification unit.